

Nigeria Nixes Cease Fire, Continues Biafra Attacks

LAGOS, Nigeria (AP) — With his troops reported advancing on Biafra's temporary capital, the head of Nigeria's military government today rejected Ethiopian Emperor Haile Selassie's call for a cease-fire in the civil war.

Maj. Gen. Yakubu Gowon also said he would not go to Addis Ababa, the Ethiopian capital, in answer to the emperor's invitation to meet there with Lt. Col. C. Odumegwu Ojukwu, leader of secessionist Biafra, and five other African heads of state on the Organization of African Unity's Nigerian committee.

Nigerian forces were reported 10 miles south of the temporary Biafran capital of Aba today, but informants said elements five miles to the east were running into stiff opposition.

Col. Benjamin Adekunle, whose 3rd Marine Commando Division is driving up from Port Harcourt toward Aba, urged that troops guarding the northern line of the secessionist state be sent in to relieve the pressure on his men.

Adekunle's two commando columns reached the Imo River Wednesday in their drive northward. The column on the west reportedly occupied a village 10 miles south of Aba. But the second prong hit strong opposition in the densely populated Ibo heartland.

Radio Biafra claimed the rebels had pushed Nigerian forces back across the river from Akwete, a settlement on the north bank, destroying three boats and killing 65 men. But the Nigerian command said that it held Akwete.

In Addis Ababa, peace talks continued in a stalemate, and the Nigerian negotiators rejected new proposals for relief flights of food and medicine to the millions of starving Biafrans. The Lagos government turned down a plan for flights to an air strip on Biafran soil that would be controlled by the International Red Cross.

Commenting on the proposal, which was endorsed by Red Cross Commissioner August Lindt, the Nigerian delegation said: "The federal government, as already indicated, will only permit flights of supplies to Enugu, from where they will be carried southward by road."

Navy Poseidon Missile Test Hailed As Complete Success

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — America's newest missile, the Navy's Poseidon, shot into the dawn right on schedule today on its maiden flight. The Navy called it a complete success.

Carrying a dummy warhead, the bright silver bird sent a brilliant flame from its dryland launch pad as it left Cape Kennedy at 6:30 a.m., EDT. Two minutes later, Poseidon spun a pinwheel pattern as it soared out of sight.

The terse Navy announcement five minutes after launch said the test moved the Poseidon forward on its schedule to become part of the submarine fleet by the early 1970's. One test goal was covering a distance of 1,000 miles into the Atlantic Ocean.

Poseidon was one of two new, powerful missiles scheduled for testing here today. Both were designed to improve chances of penetrating enemy defenses.

Slated to blast off later today was the Air Force's Minuteman 3.

Both Poseidon and Minuteman 3 have specially designed warheads that can contain several bombs and carry computers to aim them at targets hundreds of miles apart.

The launchings were prepared amid controversy over whether the timing would interfere with efforts of the United States and the Soviet Union to reach some form of agreement on the curbing of armaments.

One argument has been that the new weapons are of such importance in increasing the level of possible destruction that the testing of them should be delayed until U.S.-Soviet talks can be held.

Another view is that the new weapons would give the United States greater bargaining power in reaching an arms-limitation agreement.

The new missiles are known as MIRVs, or multiple-independently-targetable-re-entry vehicles.

Poseidon at full development may carry as many as 10 bombs in the warhead along with metal chaff and decoys to confuse enemy radar. Its range exceeds 2,500 miles although a goal of about 1,000 miles was set for the initial flight.

Twenty inches fatter at 74 inches diameter than the most advanced Polaris A3, Poseidon also is three feet longer and weighs twice as much at 65,000 pounds.

Thirty-one of the 41 U.S. ballistic missile submarines eventually will be converted for the larger weapons at a cost of about $100 million a ship. The Navy already has contracted for the first conversion, the US Daniel Boone.

Chicago Faces Transport Strike

CHICAGO (AP)—Twin labor disputes involving a major share of the city's public transportation moved close to showdown today as preparations for the Democratic National Convention entered final stages.

Drivers of the 3,500 taxis operated by the Yellow and Checker Cab companies threatened to strike at midnight tonight unless agreement on a new contract is reached by then.

Dissident drivers of Chicago Transit Authority buses Thursday night voted down a compromise move by their union to avert a wildcat strike set for Aug. 25, the day before the convention opens.

Federal Reserve Lowers Interest Rate To Banks

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Reserve Board describes its vote for a slight cutback in the discount rate as primarily technical. But the action offers hope this key economic indicator has begun its long slide back to normal.

"I am pleased," said President Johnson Thursday after the Fed's board of governors acted. "It should help to assure the availability of funds to finance a needed increase in the pace of homebuilding."

The discount rate is the rate of interest Federal Reserve banks charge for loans to their member banks. Since they'll be getting money more cheaply, these banks can be expected to make some downward revisions of the charges they make for loans to the public.

The cutback is from 5½ per cent to 5¼ per cent, enough to signal the board's belief that the crisis that faced the dollar in April, when the rate rose from 5 to 5½, has subsided considerably.

Even at the new level, one source noted, the rate is high, considering levels of the 1950s and 1960s. Thus, he said, it should still have an impact on inflation and the continuing balance of payments problem.

The reduction had been widely predicted in the financial community because of a steady easing of conditions in the money market. In effect, the board followed the market because its reason for staying at 5½ per cent had largely evaporated.

The board itself described the change as "primarily technical to align the discount rate with the change in money market conditions which had occurred chiefly as a result of the increased fiscal restraint and a lower Treasury demand for financing resulting from the enactment of the tax increase and its related expenditure cuts."

Order Murder Trials for 7 U.S. Marines

Group Accused In Slaying of 5 Viet Civilians.

DA NANG, Vietnam (AP) — A reviewing officer has upheld murder charges and ordered trials for seven U.S. Marines being held in the killing of five Vietnamese civilians.

An investigation of the deaths, which occurred last May, said two of the civilians were executed by a firing squad, one was hanged and two more were taken behind a building and shot. All the civilians had been taken prisoner as Viet Cong suspects, the report said.

Maj. Gen. Carl A. Youngdale, commander of the 1st Marine Division, has reviewed the charges brought by a preliminary investigation and ordered a general court martial for the seven Marines, a spokesman said. A total of 21 murder charges was brought.

No date has been set for the trials. The first will probably begin next month.

The defendants are: Lance Cpl. Deniz R. Allen, Lebanon, Ind.; Pvt. Martin R. Alvarez, Detroit, Mich.; Lance Cpl. Anthony Licciardo, Jr., Lowell, Mass.; Lance Cpl. John D. Belknap, Forsyth, Ga.; Lance Cpl. James A. Maushart, Vacaville, Calif.; Pfc. Manuel Cornejo, Brooklyn, N.Y.; and Pfc. Robert J. Vickers, Dothan, Ala.

Distribute Tax Funds

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A record distribution of $50.6 million in intangible tax revenues to the state's political subdivisions was reported today by State Auditor Roger Cloud.

The money, comprising the major share of the local government fund, was derived from the two mill tax on deposits in financial institutions amounting to more than $49 million, and from the five mill tax on productive investments and capital employed by dealers in intangibles totaling $1.5 million.

Balance of the local government fund amounting to $24 million comes from sales tax collections. Cloud said the distribution represents an increase of $3.9 million or 8.5 per cent above that of 1966.

SNCC To Assist Evans In Triple-Slaying Trial

CLEVELAND (AP)—A group of black nationalists said Thursday the Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee (SNCC) will offer aid and assistance to Fred "Ahmed" Evans, who is charged with first-degree murder in the death of three Cleveland policemen.

The group said a defense fund is being established to help

Evans and that chapters will be set up in Akron, Dayton and Cleveland.

They said a campaign will be launched to "decentralize" the Cleveland Police Department, removing it from the mayor's control and placing it "under the guidance of the people of the black community."

The statements were made by Philip Hutchins, SNCC chief national executive officer, and others including Melva Glass, editor of the Akron United Black Front Newspaper.

Evans is being held in Cuyahoga County Jail after being bound over to the grand jury in the shooting death of the policemen during the Glenview sniper battle July 23. Ten persons were killed during the disturbances.

The SNCC group held an impromptu news conference on the sidewalk in front of the Criminal Courts Building. About 40 took part in a silent demonstration outside the jail.

The Central Committee of the United Black Front in Akron has called for the dismissal of Akron Mayor John S. Ballard and Police Chief Harry Whiddon for "their conduct" during the city's racial disturbances.

Police Quell Filipino Mob

MANILA (AP) — Police fired into the air during a turbulent anti-American demonstration before the U.S. Embassy here today by 600 to 1,000 Filipino students and labor unionists.

The police fired when the students began throwing torches and signs at them. The demonstrators fled. Police arrested one, on charges of punching a policeman.

The demonstrators were agitating because of a wide range of issues, including the killing last month of a Filipino teenager by an American Marine guard at the U.S. Sangley Point Naval Station in nearby Cavite Province.

U.S. Losses Light Due To Firepower

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. and South Vietnamese forces, striking with tanks, artillery and planes to support the infantrymen, today reported killing 234 North Vietnamese in the hardest fighting in nearly a month along South Vietnam's northern frontier.

Spokesmen said three South Vietnamese soldiers were killed in the clashes Thursday while 15 government troops and 15 U.S. Marines were wounded.

Vastly superior allied firepower was considered responsible for the big difference in casualties.

The flareup along the northern edge of South Vietnam resulted from vigorous patrolling by the allied forces. Elsewhere across the country, the lull in ground action continued, and there was no sign of the start of the major enemy offensive which American officers expect before mid-September.

An enemy artillery barrage of 250 rounds, fired from inside the demilitarized zone at a South Vietnamese armored patrol, was the prelude to the heaviest action on the DMZ front Thursday.

The barrage destroyed one medium tank and an armored personnel carrier, and damaged another tank and three more.

Roundtown

RAIN in the form of possible thundershowers is again forecast for the Roundtown area through Saturday morning. Followed by a drop in temperature as the showers end... Recently our weather forecaster has been 100 per cent wrong... We submit yet another one on the theory that one can't always be a loser.

THE RADIO log book at the Circleville Police Station this morning looked more like an order form for a pet shop... Officer Jack Mills was summoned to a S. Court St. residence when a citizen complained of a bat in the house... Mills cleared the air and the case was closed.

Later Patrolman Wes Barton was notified that the dog that steals cartons of milk from front porches of Circleville homes had struck again... The furry beast bit off more than he could chew... The dog attempted to run off with a six-quart dispenser of cow juice, but got only two houses before he dropped the loot...

Still later, officer Mills was called again when boys throwing rocks at pigeons had broken several windows... Incidentally, today is Jack Mills' birthday... He reported that he is 28 years old, but last year he said he was 29.

New Weather Satellite Orbiting

VANDENBERG AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (AP) — ESSA 7, a new storm-spotting spacecraft, was launched into orbit today to take cloud pictures around the world as the peak of the hurricane season nears.

The 22-by-42 inch, 320-pound vehicle, the seventh environmental survey satellite, will operate from a polar orbit 887 miles high.

U. S. Space Agency officials said pictures from the craft's two cameras would be transmitted to the National Environmental Satellite Center at Suitland, Md., which has sent more than 3,000 warnings to nations threatened by dangerous storms.

The warnings are based on weather satellite photographs, which now show more than one million.

GOP Gets More Indication of Trouble with Negroes

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
The resignation of Maryland Gov. Spiro T. Agnew's only Negro staff member has underlined a top Republican Negro adviser's contention that party leaders fear black dissatisfaction is fermenting within the GOP.

Dr. Gilbert Ware, Agnew's liaison with the black community, said in a telegram of resignation that he was concerned over the governor's comments on "broad and vital questions of social justice."

At about the same time aides to the vice presidential hopeful were announcing Ware's resignation Thursday in Annapolis, Md., a top Negro adviser to Richard M. Nixon stepped out to a conference with Nixon in San Diego, Calif., to meet newsmen.

The adviser, J. Earl Dearing, Louisville prosecuting attorney, first used the word "revolt" to describe the Negro mood in the party but later said it might be better described as "seeming dissatisfaction or coolness."

But he urged Agnew to "meet with Negroes from the ghettos and formulate some positive programs."

In New York, Jackie Robinson, who quit the Republicans and Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller's staff over the nomination of Nixon and Agnew, announced he'll support Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey.

Robinson, the first Negro in baseball's major leagues, had said earlier Nixon "prostituted himself and sold himself out to the bigots in the South."

In the Democratic camp: Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy picked up the endorsement of Vermont Gov. Philip H. Hoff, who had earlier supported the assassinated Sen. Robert F. Kennedy. But McCarthy's simultaneous rallies at several cities across the country left $3 million short of the $5 million he was trying to raise, aides said.

Humphrey, campaigning through New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania, said "a difference of emphasis" is a sign that he and Nixon don't agree on Vietnam.

Humphrey said Nixon has been urging a continuation of the bombing, while the vice president has warned against "loose talk" that might scuttle the Paris negotiations.

Sen. George S. McGovern of South Dakota, the newest Democratic candidate spent most of his day on the telephone wooing delegates, but an Associated Press tally showed four of the 26 South Dakota delegates pledged to him as a favorite son had deserted or become uncommitted since his entry into the race.

Third-party candidate George Wallace headed for Indiana to spur his drive to get on the ballot there. But spokesmen for Wallace conceded after the deadline Thursday night that they'd failed to get the 8,000-plus signatures to put him on the ballot in the District of Columbia.

Humphrey joined McCarthy and McGovern Thursday in urging that Democrats eliminate as many frills and as much hoopla as possible at their convention.

Both Humphrey and McCarthy praised New Jersey Gov. Richard J. Hughes. Humphrey called him "the greatest governor in the United States of America."

McCarthy drafted a list of men he'd like to have in his presidential cabinet, including Hughes and Rockefeller as possible secretaries of housing and urban affairs.

The list also included Sen. William J. Fulbright, D-Ark.; Thurston B. Morton, R-Ky., and John Sherman Cooper, R-Ky., as secretary of state possibilities, and Mrs. Martin Luther King Jr. as possible ambassador to the United Nations.

Explosion Rips Ammo Plant

10 Persons Hurt In Louisiana Blast

MINDEN, La. (AP) — An explosion ripped through a bomb-loading section of the Louisiana Army Ammunition Plant near here early today and authorities said 10 persons were injured.

Three hours after the explosion plant officials said the resulting fire was still burning but under control.

Dr. T.A. Richardson, Webster Parish coroner, said two persons were seriously injured, one with burns over 90 per cent of his body and another with a fractured skull. The two seriously injured workers were transferred to a hospital at nearby Shreveport.

Plant spokesmen said the explosion occurred at 7:12 a.m. in the melt-pour operation on a bomb loading line where explosives are mixed.

"There was an undetermined amount of explosives involved in the explosion," the spokesman said.

There was no immediate estimate of damage and the cause of the explosion was unknown. Plant officials sealed off the area.

Lt. Col. James W. Donald, commanding officer at the plant, said there are about 7,500 contract personnel plus Army personnel employed at the plant.

The plant is located some six miles west of Minden, which is in northwestern Louisiana about 30 miles south of the Arkansas border. Residents in the Minden area reported the blast shattered windows in their homes.

Uruguayan Students Riot

Antigovernment Slogans Changed

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay (AP) — About 5,000 demonstrators who had marched in a giant funeral procession for a student killed in earlier rioting stoned foreign-owned companies Thursday night and chanted antigovernment slogans.

The mob stirred an uproar in the 18th of July Avenue for more than four hours and police made no effort to stop it.

The demonstrators shouted, "The people back the university! Gorillas (the military) should be shot! This government of thieves should resign!" Targets for their stones included offices of Pan American Airways and General Electric Co.

Barret Diaz, secretary-general of the Federation of University Students, declared today that the federation had nothing to do with Thursday night's disorders. He said they were the work of "agents provocateurs" infiltrated in the student movement.

Earlier, a massive antigovernment display—the funeral procession of more than 50,000 and a 24-hour general strike in sympathy—had proceeded peacefully, again with police making no move to interfere.

Humphrey, campaigning through New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania, said "a difference of emphasis" is a sign that he and Nixon don't agree on Vietnam.

Riot Area Insurance System Set

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—State Insurance Director Eugene P. Brown announced today that steps are being taken for Ohio to participate in a federal program to provide insurance coverage for victims of riot areas.

Brown said a statewide uniform basic property insurance inspection and placement program is being developed to provide basic property insurance on all insurable risks in Ohio.

Many insurance companies have refused to reissue policies for persons who live in riot areas because they may suffer recurring losses, Brown said.

Brown said the program should be set up on a voluntary basis, but it is expected that all licensed property-casualty insurers will participate.

The plan will enable all insurers licensed in Ohio to participate in the federal reinsurance program provided by the Urban Property Protection and Reinsurance Act of 1968 and signed into law by President Johnson Aug. 1.

The plan will include an inspection program for all types of habitational and commercial risks, Brown said.

Brown said the Cleveland area is the most critical area in Ohio. He said he hoped an approved plan would be in effect by Oct. 1.

Navy Poseidon Missile Test Hailed As Complete Success

GOP Gets More Indication of Trouble with Negroes

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The resignation of Maryland Gov. Spiro T. Agnew's only Negro staff member has underlined a top Republican Negro adviser's contention that party leaders fear black dissatisfaction is fermenting within the GOP.

The adviser, J. Earl Dearing, Louisville prosecuting attorney, first used the word "revolt" to describe the Negro mood in the party but later said it might be better described as "seeming dissatisfaction or coolness."

But he urged Agnew to "meet with Negroes from the ghettos and formulate some positive programs."

In New York, Jackie Robinson, who quit the Republicans and Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller's staff over the nomination of Nixon and Agnew, announced he'll support Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey.

Robinson, the first Negro in baseball's major leagues, said earlier Nixon "prostituted himself and sold himself out to the bigots in the South."

In the Democratic camp: Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy picked up the endorsement of Vermont Gov. Philip H. Hoff, who had earlier supported the assassinated Sen. Robert F. Kennedy. But McCarthy's simultaneous rallies at several cities across the country felt $3 million short of the $5 million he was trying to raise, aides said.

Humphrey, campaigning through New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania, said "a difference of emphasis" is a sign that he and Nixon don't agree on Vietnam.

Humphrey said Nixon has been urging a continuation of the bombing, while the vice president has warned against "loose talk" that might scuttle the Paris negotiations.

Sen. George S. McGovern of South Dakota, the newest Democratic candidate spent most of his day on the telephone wooing delegates, but an Associated Press tally showed four of the 26 South Dakota delegates pledged to him as a favorite son had deserted or become uncommitted since his entry into the race.

Third-party candidate George Wallace headed for Indiana to spur his drive to get on the ballot there. But spokesmen for Wallace conceded after the deadline Thursday night that they'd failed to get the 8,000-plus signatures to put him on the ballot in the District of Columbia.

Humphrey joined McCarthy and McGovern Thursday in urging that Democrats eliminate as many frills and as much hoopla as possible at their convention.

Both Humphrey and Mc-

Carthy praised New Jersey Gov. Richard J. Hughes. Humphrey called him "the greatest governor in the United States of America."

McCarthy drafted a list of men he'd like to have in any presidential cabinet, including Hughes and Rockefeller as possible secretaries of housing and urban affairs.

The list also included Sen. William J. Fulbright, D-Ark.; Thurston B. Morton, R-Ky., and John Sherman Cooper, R-Ky., as secretary of state possibilities, and Mrs. Martin Luther King Jr. as possible ambassador to the United Nations.

McCarthy said he was concerned over the governor's comments on "broad and vital questions of social justice."

At about the same time aides to the vice presidential hopeful were announcing Ware's resignation Thursday in Annapolis, Md., a top Negro adviser to Richard M. Nixon stepped out of a conference with Nixon in San Diego, Calif., to meet newsmen.

The adviser, J. Earl Dearing, Louisville prosecuting attorney, first used the word "revolt" to describe the Negro mood in the party but later said it might be better described as "seeming dissatisfaction or coolness."

But he urged Agnew to "meet with Negroes from the ghettos and formulate some positive programs."

By Ron Beatty — Phone 986-2581

The kids wanted to go to Circleville Sunday to see Bonnie and Clyde's car. I went to school with Clyde S. Rictine and Bonnie Black, but never knew they were even interested in each other. Clyde, as I remember, had a big raunchy moth eaten shaggy sheep dog, aptly named Stink. He smelled like a wet skunk eating limburger in Chillicothe on a foggy morning. There wasn't a sheep in the whole country that Stink couldn't corral. They gagged all the way to the barn when Stink got in the field. Clyde and Stink were inseparable. Buddies. Side by side. Thick and thin. Pals. Stink never left Clyde. Oh, they never left him in the schoolhouse, but somehow when you were with Clyde, Stink seemed close. Where Clyde went, Stink went.

I don't know how Bonnie ever came between them. Really! I don't! Stink would have won over Bonnie in disposition, personality and intelligence. Being a dog and all, he couldn't cook. Bonnie may have snared Clyde with her prize dish which was muskrat hash. Comes a time in a young man's life when something is more important than comradeship and that's good food.

By the time I had finished reminiscing, we arrived at the display. Frankly I was looking forward to seeing Clyde. He was a sensitive type who gave up his bus collection because he couldn't bear to put the little creatures to sleep. I never cared for Bonnie, but figured I would try to be civil to her. There was a long line going into this trailer. "Must be some car", I thought. "To pull a trailer like that". As it turned out when we got inside, the car was there, but no Bonnie and Clyde. It was a nice enough car but it had holes all over it. Asked someone what happened and couldn't believe my ears. Those were bullet holes and Bonnie and Clyde were no more.

There were crazy stories going around and it took a while to get the truth. Seems their marriage was doomed from the start. Clyde wanted to take Stink on their honeymoon, but Bonnie wouldn't have it. She had Stink framed on a sheep killing charge and sent to a canine prison down in Texas. There he had to work catching gophers. You can imagine the humiliation of a good sheep dog. Clyde, incensed at the treatment of Stink, determined to rescue him. One foggy January morning as a work detail of dogs headed up to the gopher fields, Clyde appeared. He outran two German shepherds guarding the dogs and raced away with Stink.

Bonnie wasn't happy with Stink back, but she liked the excitement of the prison break and the wild ride during the ensuing chase. They shook off the law and arrived in Kansas. Here Clyde hoped to start a sheep ranch back in the hills where the three of them could live happily ever after. It didn't work. Bonnie liked to smoke cigars and Stink couldn't stand them. The second day there Bonnie lit a stogie and Stink bit her. She secretly informed the law where Stink was. Clyde and Stink had to fight their way out. This time they went to Louisiana where Clyde knew a man who agreed to hide them. In return, Bonnie agreed to cook.

While there, Bonnie blew up because she caught Clyde sneaking Stink some of her muskrat hash. What made it worse was that Stink turned green after one bite and wouldn't eat anymore. Clyde decided to go to town and get Stink some dog food. Bonnie allowed that she would go along. The man hiding them didn't like Bonnie's hash either and only ate it at the point of her gun. Assuming that Stink would go with Clyde as always, he called the sheriff and told him they were coming. Considerate Clyde, however, was worried about Stink's upset stomach and left him home. So it was there on a lonely stretch of road they ambushed Bonnie and Clyde. Bringing to an end a saga of people on the run, catapulted from one tragedy to another by the tender affection of a boy for his dog and the jealous torment of a young bride.

What happened to Stink? Well, he is an old dog now and a wanderer. He still searches high and low for Clyde. Never forgetting his fugitive status from the bum rap Bonnie pinned on him, he stays hidden and you will never see him. The next time a delicate breeze gently wafts a mysterious aroma near your nostrils be not hasty to blame paper mills, stockyards, sewage plants or burning tires. It may just be old Stink.

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market maintained a modest gain as the trading pace slowed this afternoon. Advances by individual stocks topped declines by about 200 issues after having held a better than 2 to 1 margin in early trading.

A spokesman reported 165 enemy soldiers killed in a day-long battle, 50 of them by fighter-bomber strikes, before the remaining enemy escaped.

South Vietnamese headquarters said the action was in the same area where government troops killed 107 enemy soldiers a week earlier.

To the west along the DMZ, U.S. Marines reported killing 69 North Vietnamese in three clashes, one three miles northwest of the U.S. artillery base at Camp Carroll and the other two southeast of the Con Thien outpost, which is two miles below the DMZ.

In the fight near Camp Carroll, enemy troops dug in on high ground north of the Cam Lo River fired mortar shells on approaching Marines. The Leathernecks called in tanks, artillery and air strikes that drove the North Vietnamese from their positions. Then they pushed the enemy down the back side of the ridge.

The Marines reported 41 enemy soldiers killed and 13 Marines wounded in that battle.

Another unit of Marines near Con Thien spotted enemy troops setting up an ambush and called in air strikes to drive the enemy into a trap. The Leathernecks set up. They reported killing 11 North Vietnamese and said there were no Marine casualties.

Several hours later in the same area, a Marine patrol spotted an enemy unit and called in reinforcements, tanks and helicopter gunships. The Leathernecks said that time 17 North Vietnamese were killed and two Marines were wounded.

Bumper Stickers Are Ruled Out Of Post Offices

CINCINNATI (AP)—The auto bumper-type stickers reading, "America-love it or leave it," are gone from the concession stand at the U.S. Post Office here.

General Services Administration Thursday banned the stickers from the building. A spokesman said the stickers violated two federal regulations which require federal approval of goods sold or distributed in federal buildings, and which forbid posting of signs or posters—except those issued by the government. The stickers reportedly were obtained from a postal employee who had about 250,000 printed.

Thieves Rob Legion Post

Thieves, set on a little good living, broke into the Hall-Adkins post American Legion on Route 23 about 1:30 a.m. Thursday.

The thieves took five T-bone steaks, cigars, additional food, enjoyed liquor from the bar and removed about $200 in coins from a wall mounted juke box, according to the sheriff's department. Total loss was estimated at $216.50.

Entrance to the Legion post was gained through a window near the patio, the sheriff stated. The incident is still under investigation.

To the west along the DMZ, U.S. Marines reported killing 69 North Vietnamese in three clashes, one three miles north-east of the U.S. artillery base at Camp Carroll and the other two southeast of the Con Thien outpost, which is two miles below the DMZ.

In the fight near Camp Carroll, enemy troops dug in on high ground north of the Cam Lo River fired mortar shells on approaching Marines. The Leathernecks called in tanks, artillery and air strikes that drove the North Vietnamese from their positions. Then they pushed the enemy down the back side of the ridge.

The Marines reported 41 enemy soldiers killed and 13 Marines wounded in that battle.

Another unit of Marines near Con Thien spotted enemy troops setting up an ambush and called in air strikes to drive the enemy into a trap the Leathernecks set up. They reported killing 11 North Vietnamese and said there were no Marine casualties.

Several hours later in the same area, a Marine patrol spotted an enemy unit and called in reinforcements, tanks and helicopter gunships. The Leathernecks said that time 17 North Vietnamese were killed and two Marines were wounded.

Bumper Stickers Are Ruled Out Of Post Offices

CINCINNATI (AP)—The auto bumper-type stickers reading, "America-love it or leave it," are gone from the concession stand at the U.S. Post Office here.

General Services Administration Thursday banned the stickers from the building. A spokesman said the stickers violated two federal regulations which require federal approval of goods sold or distributed in federal buildings, and which forbid posting of signs or posters except those issued by the government. The stickers reportedly were obtained from a postal employee who had about 250,000 printed.

Thieves Rob Legion Post

Thieves, set on a little good living, broke into the Hall-Adkins post American Legion on Route 23 about 1:30 a.m. Thursday.

The thieves took five T-bone steaks, cigars, additional food, enjoyed liquor from the bar and removed about $200 in coins from a wall mounted juke box, according to the sheriff's department. Total loss was estimated at $216.50.

Entrance to the Legion post was gained through a window near the patio, the sheriff stated.

The incident is still under investigation.

Bogota, Colombia Cleans For Visit by Pope Paul VI

BOGOTA, Colombia (AP) — "Bogota isn't ugly. All it needs is a bit of makeup."

With that thought in mind and an eye out for the approaching visit of Pope Paul VI, city fathers are pushing a multimillion-dollar facelifting that has given this gray, chilly, 8,600-foot high capital a sparkle it probably has never known in its 430 years.

Caught up in the spirit of things, homeowners are painting their house fronts, trimming gardens and trees. Businessmen are tidying up their establishments. The grime of years is being removed from the aging fronts of the National Cathedral, the Municipal Palace and the Capitol.

Streets are being cleared of prostitutes, pickpockets and beggars. Police are everywhere and a legion of traffic cops is making it possible for people to walk—not dash desperately—at pedestrian crossings.

Many of the public works projects—new sewage and lighting systems and expressways—now completed or under way had been in the planning stage for several years. They were accelerated by the selection of Bogota for two important religious meetings, an International Eucharistic Congress and the conference of the Latin American Episcopal Council, and finally by the definite news that the Pope would be a visitor Aug. 22-24.

Estimates of the cost of the papal visit alone, exclusive of the public works programs, range as high as $10 million in new installations and preparations. The city and national governments, as well as the Catholic Church, are financing it.

The Pope's visit has aroused glowing pride among most Co-

lombians but there are dissidents.

Some express disappointment the Pope will stay at the papal nunciature instead of the home of a Colombian priest. Others say state funds—derived from taxes on Jews, Protestants and non-Catholics as well as Catholics—should not have been used in the preparations.

A sociologist sees Bogota's urban problems worsened by the papal visit which may increase the city's 2 million population by 10,000 or more visitors who stay in the city.

"The poor will sell pig or cow or whatever they own just to make the pilgrimage," he says, "And once here with no place to go, they'll stay."

Marijuana Smokers Given Dirty Deal

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (AP) — If Bloomington area marijuana users have been smoking more late and enjoying it less, police have an answer.

City detectives, acting on a tip, found a cache of four pounds of marijuana and three pounds of horse manure in a suitcase, along with a recipe for drying and grinding the manure to mix with the marijuana and "stretch" it.

IN THE COURT OF COMMON PLEAS, PICKAWAY COUNTY, OHIO PROBATE COURT DIVISION In the Matter of the Estate of

Anna R. Fausnaugh, deceased. Notice of filing of petition for granting original administration, after twenty years

No. Notice is hereby given that on the 18th day of July, 1968, Gladys Wiggins filed her petition in the Common Pleas Court of Pickaway County, Ohio, asking that she be appointed administratrix of the estate of Anna R. Fausnaugh, deceased, who died on or about the 10th day of January, 1939, residing at 723 North Court Street, Circleville, Ohio, in said county, stating, although twenty years had expired from the death of the said decedent, letters of administration should be granted to her for the following reasons: It is necessary to administer the estate in order to transfer the real estate owned by the decedent to the next of kin of the decedent and to satisfy liens against the said real estate that have been created by some of the next of kin against the said real estate.

A hearing will be had in said court on said application on the 17th day of August, 1968, at 10:00 a.m. Guy G. Cline Judge of the Common Pleas Court, Pickaway County, Ohio Probate Division July 19, 26; Aug. 2, 9, 16

Receiving an affirmative nod, he hired her on the spot.

It would be nice to report that this was an updated version of the old Lana Turner—soda fountain discovery legend, but the outcome turned out to be a disappointing anticlimax.

Judy Jordan of Miami, Fla., the pretty girl, has already been discovered. For the past few seasons she has been one of Jackie Gleason's Glea Girls—the one, in fact, who each week says "...and away we go."

Top Pie Eater SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — Nine-year-old Kevin Boehme of Taylorville won the pie eating contest at the Illinois State Fair Thursday by eating his cherry pie faster than any other contestant. He said afterward that he doesn't like cherry pie. "I really wanted apple pie," he said.

Views on TV - Radio

By CYNTHIA LOWRY AP Television-Radio Writer HOLLYWOOD (AP) — This is the time of the year when worrying is a way of life for the inhabitants of televisionland.

If you are connected with an established show that has gone merrily along for two years or 10, you worry about the competition and whether the viewers will love you in September as they seemed to last March.

If you are involved in a new series, you worry about everything—the competition, particularly if part of it consists of feature movie reruns; the time period; the scripts; the format and—mostly—the reaction of the fickle, inscrutable public.

The only relatively carefree crowd is found working in a series that was tossed into a mid-season vacancy in a network schedule and, somehow, caught on.

One of these last season was ABC's "It Takes a Thief," which not only proved a popular winner, but attracted an audience that saved the show that followed it, "N.Y.P.D.," which had been slated for extinction.

"I was pretty unhappy when ABC gave us that midseason spot," said Robert Wagner, the star of "It Takes a Thief." "I liked the show and I liked my character but I figured it was all down the drain."

The public liked the character, too. Wagner plays a jaunty, debonaire thief using his skills as a superagent. What makes it all sort of a mystery, however, is that at the time the show made its debut, jaunty, debonaire superagents had become a drug on the market—"Laugh-in," in fact, had replaced the jauntiest, most debonaire of them all, "The Man From U.N.C.L.E."

"Ours just took off," said Wagner. "When we started production all we had was one script. We worked 17 hours without a break and I think now the terrible pressure of deadlines kept us on our toes and added something."

Now, established as a hit, the emergency is over, the production plan is made—and with success has come an extra dimension.

"Writers now are interested in doing scripts; actors and agents want to get involved with the show," Wagner said.

Wagner, who has been a successful film actor for more than 20 years, is committed to the series under the usual five year contract. He is happy with the prospect although it means giving up some film assignments.

Producer Leslie Stevens of "The Name of the Game" needed a pretty girl for a small part Thursday when one of the tourist trams stopped by the set on the Universal lot. He spotted a young brunette among the tourists and asked her if she belonged to the actors' or the extras' union.

Receiving an affirmative nod, he hired her on the spot.

Black Models Now in Demand

By JEAN SPRAIN WILSON AP Newsfeatures Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Roan Nesbitt discarded her straightening comb and had her thick, kinky hair cropped closely to emphasize ethnic features.

Myrna Stephens, a shade lighter with small features and hair that refuses to frizz, has bought a woolly wig which she wears from time to time to highlight her African heritage.

Both are highpaid models for Eileen Ford, one of the nation's top modeling agencies. A few years ago both girls would have been too dark to model. Today they are in demand because they are dark.

A few years ago they might have minimized their racial appearance to increase their prospects for success. Today that is not only unnecessary, but undesirable.

The black beauty has come into her own.

Carbon copies of white beauty are not enough to lure black buying power. Some Negroes scoff at the use of tea-colored, caucasian - featured, Kenneth-coiffed manikins in advertising as token gestures towards racial equality. Militants ridicule these models as "Aunt Janes" urging Negro women to reject all white-oriented styles and to appreciate that "black is beautiful."

Thus the black beauty wears her hair natural, or Afro, as the look is called, and a minimum of makeup. She may tie a buba and lapa around her body and a turban around her head and jangle with Nigerian jewelry. She carries herself tall, for her look symbolizes black identity and racial pride.

Bogota, Colombia Cleans For Visit by Pope Paul VI

BOGOTA, Colombia (AP) — "Bogota isn't ugly. All it needs is a bit of makeup."

With that thought in mind and an eye out for the approaching visit of Pope Paul VI, city fathers are pushing a multimillion-dollar facelift that has given this gray, chilly, 8,600-foot high capital a sparkle it probably has never known in its 430 years.

Caught up in the spirit of things, homeowners are painting their house fronts, trimming gardens and trees. Businessmen are tidying up their establishments. The grime of years is being removed from the aging fronts of the National Cathedral, the Municipal Palace and the Capitol.

Streets are being cleared of prostitutes, pickpockets and beggars. Police are everywhere and a legion of traffic cops is making it possible for people to walk—not dash desperately—at pedestrian crossings.

Many of the public works projects—new sewage and lighting systems and expressways—now completed or under way had been in the planning stage for several years. They were accelerated by the selection of Bogota for two important religious meetings, an International Eucharistic Congress and the conference of the Latin American Episcopal Council, and finally by the definite news that the Pope would be a visitor Aug. 22-24.

Estimates of the cost of the papal visit alone, exclusive of the public works programs, range as high as $10 million in new installations and preparations. The city and national governments, as well as the Catholic Church, are financing it.

The Pope's visit has aroused glowing pride among most Co-

lombians but there are dissidents.

Some express disappointment the Pope will stay at the papal nunciature instead of the home of a Colombian priest. Others say state funds—derived from taxes on Jews, Protestants and non-Catholics as well as Catholics—should not have been used in the preparations.

A sociologist sees Bogota's urban problems worsened by the papal visit which may increase the city's 2 million population by 10,000 or more visitors who stay in the city.

"The poor will sell pig or cow or whatever they own just to make the pilgrimage," he says. "And once here with no place to go, they'll stay."

Views on TV - Radio

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Television-Radio Writer
HOLLYWOOD (AP) — This is the time of the year when working is a way of life for the inhabitants of televisionland.

If you are connected with an established show that has gone merrily along for two years or 10, you worry about the competition and whether the viewers will love you in September as they seemed to last March.

If you are involved in a new series, you worry about everything—the competition, particularly if part of it consists of feature movie reruns; the time period; the scripts; the format and—mostly—the reaction of the fickle, inscrutable public.

The only relatively carefree crowd is found working in a series that was tossed into a mid-season vacancy in a network schedule and, somehow, caught on.

One of these last season was ABC's "It Takes a Thief," which not only proved a popular winner, but attracted an audience that saved the show that followed it, "N.Y.P.D.," which had been slated for extinction.

"I was pretty unhappy when ABC gave us that midseason spot," said Robert Wagner, the star of "It Takes a Thief." "I liked the show and I liked my character but I figured it was all down the drain."

The public liked the character, too. Wagner plays a jaunty, debonaire thief using his skills as a superagent. What makes it all sort of a mystery, however, is that at the time the show made its debut, jaunty, debonaire superagents had become a drug on the market—"Laugh-in," in fact, had replaced the jauntiest, most debonaire of them all, "The Man From U.N.C.L.E."

"Ours just took off," said Wagner. "When we started production all we had was one script. We worked 17 hours without a break and I think now the terrible pressure of deadlines kept us on our toes and added something."

Now, established as a hit, the emergency is over, the production plan is made—and with success has come an extra dimension.

"Writers now are interested in doing scripts; actors and agents want to get involved with the show," Wagner said.

Wagner, who has been a successful film actor for more than 20 years, is committed to the series under the usual five year contract. He is happy with the prospect although it means giving up some film assignments.

Producer Leslie Stevens of "The Name of the Game" needed a pretty girl for a small part Thursday when one of the tourist trams stopped by the set on the Universal lot. He spotted a young brunette among the tourists and asked her if she belonged to the actors' or the extras' union.

Receiving an affirmative nod, he hired her on the spot.

It would be nice to report that this was an updated version of the old Lana Turner—soda fountain discovery legend, but the outcome turned out to be a disappointing anticlimax.

Black Models Now in Demand

By JEAN SPRAIN WILSON

NEW YORK (AP) — Roan Nesbitt discarded her straightening comb and had her thick, kinky hair cropped closely to emphasize ethnic features.

Myrna Stephens, a shade lighter with small features and hair that refuses to frizz, has bought a woolly wig which she wears from time to time to highlight her African heritage.

Both are highpaid models for Eileen Ford, one of the nation's top modeling agencies. A few years ago both girls would have been too dark to model. Today they are in demand because they are dark.

A few years ago they might have minimized their racial appearance to increase their prospects for success. Today that is not only unnecessary, but undesirable.

The black beauty has come into her own.

Carbon copies of white beauty are not enough to lure black buying power. Some Negroes scoff at the use of tea-colored, caucasian-featured, Kenneth-coiffed manikins in advertising as token gestures towards racial equality. Militants ridicule these models as "Aunt Janes" urging Negro women to reject all white-oriented styles and to appreciate that "black is beautiful."

Thus the black beauty wears her hair natural, or Afro, as the look is called, and a minimum of makeup. She may tie a buba and lapa around her body and a turban around her head and jangle with Nigerian jewelry. She carries herself tall, for her look symbolizes black identity and racial pride.

Born in St. Thomas, Myrna who is adept at white-originated vogues, false eye lashes and eye makeup, is proud of her family's African origin. But she feels the African influence in fashion should be blended in, adapted to the Western world. She is, incidentally, the favorite model of Jon Haggin, a Negro designer who is skilled PJ at creating sophisticated couture with African feeling.

Roan summed up her feelings this way.

"It's not so much how anyone does with her hair, or what she has on outside her. Making black beautiful is to feel it inside and to stand straight, and look the world straight in the eyes."

Tyranny of Polls

If the current accusation that this is "a sick society" is understood to mean that the nation seems to lack the competence to cope successfully with its problems, that notion would appear to have some validity.

Take the commonly held belief that the polling of several thousand persons serves to elicit the opinion of 200 million persons who compose this country's population.

That this belief is seemingly shared by the most prominent and influential persons in the nation's public life, operates virtually to deprive the nation of the benefit of the presumably superior mentalities of these eminent persons by subjecting their minds to a tyranny of the polls.

The consequence of this is that the positions taken by the nation's actual or potential decision-makers are likely to be determined not by their knowledge, thought and principles, but by their automatic acceptance of the "public opinion" revelations of the pollsters.

What is more serious than this pernicious effect is the generally recognized tendency of voters to adopt the poll opinions as their own under the well-nigh irresistible impulse to be on the side of the "winners."

So it comes about that the poll creates public opinion and thereby "proves" the poll to have been correct. Thus the institution of the poll works to abrogate the political judgment of the American people.

Few Live with In-Laws

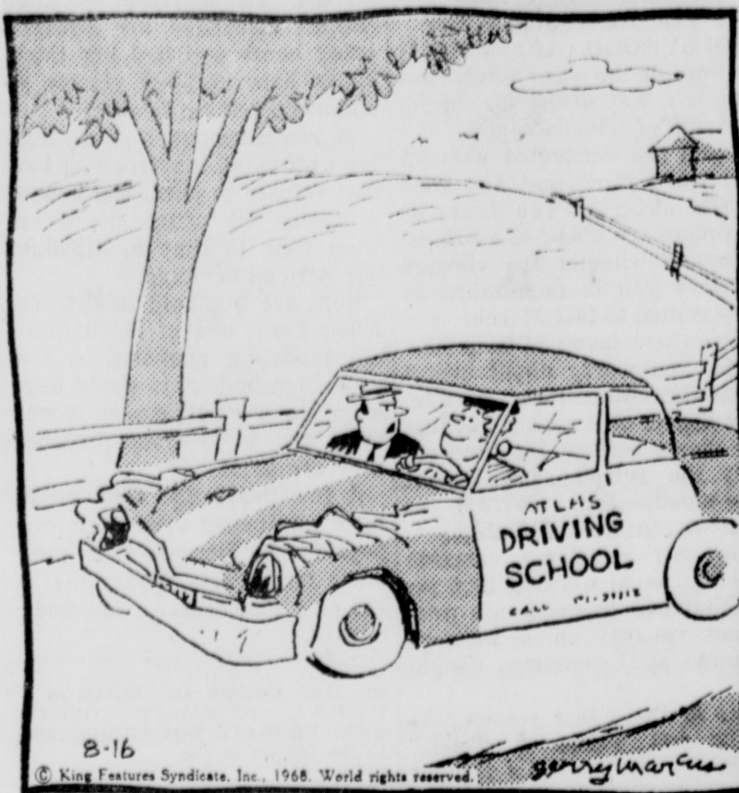

In-laws have less influence upon their children's families than ever. Less than 2 percent of all U.S. housing accommodations more than one family.

No other nation on earth can approach the American record of home ownership. Even the most modest homes in the U.S. are unmatched in other world powers. Compared to a nation like the Soviet Union, which has not yet progressed beyond the out-door plumbing and potbellied stove era, any American home is enviable.

Certainly the desire for independence of a family unit must rank high among the worthwhile achievements of a society guided by the promise of dignity and freedom for the individual.

"You're doing better today—the road is turning when you do!"

Try and Stop Me

By BENNETT CERF

A TRAMP seeking a free meal was told by a thrifty farmer's wife that he could have a full dinner if he'd milk the cow first. She handed him a stool and he wended his way reluctantly toward the barn. He was back some time later, battered, bruised—and without one drop of milk. "I done my darndest, lady," he reported sadly, "but I just couldn't get that fool cow to set on the stool."

The golf nut had a beautiful creature on his right at dinner and gave her an endless monologue on his extraordinary achievements on golf courses here and abroad. All she got in was an occasional, "Remarkable." Finally he became aware that her attention was wandering and apologized, "I'm afraid I've been monopolizing the conversation and talking about nothing but golf." "That's quite all right," she assured him, "but do tell me this: what's golf?"

"How are you so sure," a kindly boss asked his worried right-hand man, "that your wife insists upon a vacation abroad?" "Well, for one thing," the right-hand man reported, "she phoned me this morning from Rome."

Speaking of Your Health

By Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

I am sure I am one of the millions of mothers whose children suck their thumbs. I was particularly distressed when the nursery teacher of my five-year-old child called me and seemed to insinuate that I was doing irreparable harm by not stopping this immediately. What is the modern attitude towards the control of thumb sucking? Can any harm be done to the structure of their teeth and mouth?

Dear Mrs. L.: I gather you are far more distressed by the teacher than you were by the fact that your child still sucks his thumb. I am quite certain that a longer discussion with the teacher would have shown you that she has a greater psychological insight into the causes of thumb sucking than was apparent during your conversation.

Sucking the thumb is nature's built-in pacifier that gives to a child a sense of security in addition to the soothing sensation, the warmth and the pleasurable skin reaction.

A great many explanations have been given for thumb sucking. Some are psychologically very complex. Many psychiatrists and child analysts believe that the sucking reflex of the infant needs gratification and fulfillment. This reflex is not always adequate during breast feeding or bottle feeding and may need further supplement as a child gets older. This idea is not universally accepted by all doctors, but is as good as some other answers which, at best, are speculative about this problem.

There is universal agreement, however, by all doctors and psychologists that children should not be shamed into stopping this habit or punished for continuing to do it. It is agreed, too, that thumb sucking will stop when the child finds and learns that there are other ways of developing security. Mothers and teachers are now taught that a calm attitude with almost casual disregard of thumb sucking will help the child break the pattern. It takes time and patience by parents to wait for the day when it will stop. It will.

The use of harsh, bad tasting medicines on the thumbs is Dark Ages psychological hanging of this delicate problem. The use of restricting thumb and hand guards makes no sense and only serves to exaggerate the physical and emotional tensions in the child and in the family.

The anxiety of parents is sometimes made more marked by the suggestion that the formation of the jaw and the configuration of the teeth will be permanently changed and even damaged. This has not sufficient validity to pressurize the child or restrain him. The psychological damage that can be done to a child can be far more destructive than the disadvantage of a questionable change in dentition that may result.

In the older child of six or seven it may cause him embarrassment in the early grades at school. If thumb sucking persists at this time, consultation with a doctor or a psychologist may reveal the deeper rooted reasons for thumb sucking and how it can be resolved without producing more difficult and less apparent psychological traits.

Even while dieting, breakfast is an important meal.

The Business World

By JOHN CUNNEIFF

NEW YORK (AP) — The decision this week by federal judges that some corporate officers violated the law by buying stock in their company before telling the public some awful good news already is being called a landmark.

If this is so, then this landmark is liable to be thoroughly trampled or lost in the weeds for a while. It still will be difficult to measure misdeeds by it. And it may even confuse the confusing business of just what is "inside" information.

The decision, which involves the Texas Gulf Sulphur Co., means that insiders, usually company officers, cannot trade stock in their corporation on the basis of their access to information not yet disclosed to the public.

That much is clear enough. But the decision also involves as insiders, those outsiders who receive tips on the unpublished news. That really hits home. It involves the mechanism of the market, whose gears revolve on tips, rumors, gossip, speculation and inside dope.

How often, for example, do professionals obtain information on earnings, possible stock splits, merger plans, management changes, discoveries, new products, contract awards and such?

Judging by the frequency with which stocks rise on bullish rumors and "unconfirmed reports" only to fall when the news is confirmed, indicates that the answer might be "more than a few times."

In fact, to learn such information if possible is the business of today's aggressive analysts. True, the stock exchanges are sometimes quick to prod firms into announcements after the rumors begin floating, but this really confirms that inside traders were indeed at work.

The Texas Gulf case briefly is this:

In mid-November 1963 officials of the company began receiving reports from geologists at Timmins, Ont., indicating a mineral find might be developing.

On April 12, 1964, company officers, prompted by rumors, disclosed that the company had prospects in the Timmins area but said early reports then circulating might be premature and misleading.

Four days later, however, the company announced a major discovery at the site, a disclosure that naturally propelled upward the price of Texas Gulf stock, making it, in fact, one of the glamor holdings of the year.

Investigating, the Securities and Exchange Commission found that despite the cautious tone of the April 12 announcement, officers of the company had been acting very bullish. They had been buying stock and tipping friends to buy also.

This, said the SEC, was a violation of the securities laws because officers and friends had used for their own personal benefit information that everyone in the marketplace was entitled to know.

After losing in one court, the SEC was upheld by nine judges in the U.S. Court of Appeals. It is likely now that some form of restitution will be demanded of the Texas Gulf insiders.

Officers and directors of the most unique community show in the state, The Circleville Pumpkin Show, were busily making plans for the upcoming silver anniversary of the event.

The government thermometer in Circleville registered 95 degrees Thursday afternoon at the highest point. Perhaps that was indirectly the cause of a near panic at the corner of Main and Court Sts., Friday, when it was just about as hot.

"It happened this way: a sweet young thing was tripping down the main drag when suddenly, and for no apparent reason, she gave a slight shake and daintily stepped out of a delicate pink petticoat. Then went blithely on her way.

"The onlookers were aghast with surprise, not that she would step out of the petticoat, but that she had one to step out of. Perhaps petticoats are coming back." A news item, as it appeared on page 1 of the Friday, Aug. 19, 1928 edition of the Circleville Herald.

NEW YORK (AP) — Remarks that television repairmen get tired of hearing:

"The only difference between you and Jesse James is that Jesse rode a horse."

"What new tweed pattern are you going to leave us with this time, Benjy? I got kind of tired of the last one."

"I don't know what's wrong with it. I kicked it several times—and even that didn't seem to help."

"Why can't you fix our television set so it will stay fixed? Is that too much to ask?"

"I hear that Benjy studied television repairing through a correspondence school. He must have run out of stamps after taking the second lesson."

"What!—You here again Benjy? You spend more time in my living room than Walter Cronkite does."

"It was real eerie. We were just sitting there calmly watching an old Lucille Ball program, and then, instead of her voice, we heard Hubert Humphrey giving a political speech. How mixed up can a television set get?"

"I'm giving you one last warning, Benjy. If you don't get this set in working condition in two days, I'll climb down your chimney with next Christmas and leave it under your tree."

"What's wrong with it this time? Well, for one thing, the NBC peacock looks like a flamingo or a blushing chicken. Are peacocks supposed to have pale pink feathers?"

"Put away your screwdriver, Benjy. I guess I won't need you after all. Just before you got here, I jiggled the machine a little and now it's doing fine again. Here's a quarter for your trouble."

"My wife wastes whole days looking at soap operas, Benjy. I'd like to make a secret deal with you. Whatever she pays you to fix the set, I'll double the amount if you fix it so that it breaks down again ten minutes after you leave."

"Why is it that every television repairman, when he finds he can't make your old machine work anymore, can always refer you to an uncle or a cousin or a brother-in-law who is in the business of selling new sets? Isn't that against the antitrust laws—or something?"

"Well, Benjy, if our television set has you stumped, how about looking at my laundry machine or my vacuum cleaner? They're not working either."

"Just do me one favor, Benjy. Tell me who your wife calls for help when the set in your own house breaks down—and I'll give him a ring."

"I'm warning you, Benjy—my check for this job is postdated 10 days. If our machine falls apart again in that time, I'll call the bank and tell them to stop payment."

"Well, the world can be grateful for one thing, Benjy—at least you didn't take up brain surgery."

"Is this your bill—or just the federal debt?"

"We first suspected there was something wrong with it when we saw Richard Nixon addressing the Republican convention on the right side of the set, and on the left side we saw Kitty pouring Marshall Dillon a drink in the Long Branch Saloon."

"As soon as he finds out that we don't have any more beer in the refrigerator, he'll get the set working again in a jiffy."

"Benjy, you must make more out of television than Johnny Carson and Jackie Gleason put together."

"I don't want our television set to be lonely in case my wife and I should pass on suddenly, Benjy, so I've put a clause in my will leaving the machine to you. After all, it has spent more time in your shop than it has in our home."

Ohio's Highway Department reports that cleaning up after highway litterbugs is costing the state half-a-million dollars a year. That certainly is a mess—of money.

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — When a painter becomes a director and a housewife turns films producer, what can the end result possibly be.

In the case of "C. Soutine," it's an art film about an artist, and it has walked off with this year's Venice Film Festival's prized Golden Lion for best documentary.

"C. Soutine" chronicles with stunning impact the life, work and thought of Chaim Soutine, a Russian-born painter who influenced the Paris school of impressionists and post-impressionists.

The move was the brainchild of Rita Morrison, a Los Angeles doctor's wife who studied film at UCLA.

"I had always wanted to make a film," she recalls, "Finally I just said, 'Today is the day.'"

For her subject she chose Soutine, a painter whose reputation lagged behind his contemporaries. He was the "painter's painter."

But now, 25 years after Soutine's death, there was to be an exhibition of his work at the Los Angeles County Museum of Art.

Curator Maurice Tuchman set out for Paris to ferret out Soutine works hidden in attics and cellars of the artist's friends. With him went Rita Morrison.

In Paris they found one of Soutine's mistresses, Mrs. Morrison quickly hired a camera crew and filmed an interview with the petite Mlle. Garde who spoke no English but said softly for the cameras: "J'adore Soutine."

Back in Los Angeles with her film, Mrs. Morrison recruited Jack H. Lieberman, 38, a one-time painter and lecturer in the humanities. As a film director he had several documentaries to his credit. Also, he had studied at the Barnes Foundation which holds the largest American collection of Soutines.

Lieberman brought in Ken Plotin, young innovative cinematographer, and Fred Haines, screenwriter who had worked on the film "Ulysses."

Edward G. Robinson, a Soutine admirer and art collector, agreed to narrate.

"In researching Soutine's life," says Lieberman, "I found that he was haunted by a childhood experience. As a boy, he witnessed the Jewish ritual slaughter of a chicken."

Examination of Soutine canvases further revealed tortured visions of dying animals—bleeding chickens, hulks of butchered cattle.

The film opens in a slaughterhouse—intestines of cattle pouring into the screen.

Then all is filmed in dark sepia tones—Peltin's idea. It gives the effect of viewing a very old photograph album. A dark-headed boy—Lieberman's son, Joshua, 8—watches an aged, bearded man slit the throat of a fluffy white chicken.

The child, who had been given no script, reached instinctively to his own throat as the blood spilled.

There is a brief black-and-white sequence when Tuchman brings Soutine's paintings to the museum for the art show.

Then, again in color, the film returns to Paris, 1943. Chaim Soutine's death, of a perforated ulcer, is depicted with a closeup view of open-stomach surgery.

Tyranny of Polls

If the current accusation that this is "a sick society" is understood to mean that the nation seems to lack the competence to cope successfully with its problems, that notion would appear to have some validity.

Take the commonly held belief that the polling of several thousand persons serves to elicit the opinion of 200 million persons who compose this country's population.

That this belief is seemingly shared by the most prominent and influential persons in the nation's public life, operates virtually to deprive the nation of the benefit of the presumably superior mentalities of these eminent persons by subjecting their minds to a tyranny of the polls.

The consequence of this is that the positions taken by the nation's actual or potential decision-makers are likely to be determined not by their knowledge, thought and principles, but by their automatic acceptance of the "public opinion" revelations of the pollsters.

What is more serious than this pernicious effect is the generally recognized tendency of voters to adopt the poll opinions as their own under the well-nigh irresistible impulse to be on the side of the "winners."

So it comes about that the poll creates public opinion and thereby "proves" the poll to have been correct. Thus the institution of the poll works to abrogate the political judgment of the American people.

Few Live with In-Laws

In-laws have less influence upon their children's families than ever. Less than 2 percent of all U.S. housing accommodates more than one family.

No other nation on earth can approach the American record of home ownership. Even the most modest homes in the U.S. are unmatched in other world powers. Compared to a nation like the Soviet Union, which has not yet progressed beyond the out-door plumbing and potbellied stove era, any American home is enviable.

Certainly the desire for independence of a family unit must rank high among the worthwhile achievements of a society guided by the promise of dignity and freedom for the individual.

Try and Stop Me

By BENNETT CERF

A TRAMP seeking a free meal was told by a thrifty farmer's wife that he could have a full dinner if he'd milk the cow first. She handed him a stool and he wended his way reluctantly toward the barn. He was back some time later, battered, bruised — and without one drop of milk. "I done my darndest, lady," he reported sadly, "but I just couldn't get that fool cow to set on the stool."

The golf nut had a beautiful creature on his right at dinner and gave her an endless monologue on his extraordinary achievements on golf courses here and abroad. All she got in was an occasional, "Remarkable." Finally he became aware that her attention was wandering and apologized, "I'm afraid I've been monopolizing the conversation and talking about nothing but golf." "That's quite all right," she assured him, "but do tell me this: what's golf?"

"How are you so sure," a kindly boss asked his worried right-hand man, "that your wife insists upon a vacation abroad?" "Well, for one thing," the right-hand man reported, "she phoned me this morning from Rome."

Speaking of Your Health

By Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

I am sure I am one of the millions of mothers whose children suck their thumbs. I was particularly distressed when the nursery teacher of my five-year-old child called me and seemed to insinuate that I was doing irreparable harm by not stopping this immediately. What is the modern attitude towards the control of thumb sucking? Can any harm be done to the structure of their teeth and mouth?

Mrs. N.L., Florida
Dear Mrs. L.: I gather you are far more distressed by the teacher than you were by the fact that your child still sucks his thumb. I am quite certain that a longer discussion with the teacher would have shown you that she has a greater psychological insight into the causes of thumb sucking than was apparent during your conversation.

Sucking the thumb is nature's built-in pacifier that gives to a child a sense of security in addition to the soothing sensation, the warmth and the pleasurable skin reaction.

The use of harsh, bad tasting medicines on the thumbs is Dark Ages psychological handling of this delicate problem. The use of restricting thumb and hand guards makes no sense and only serves to exaggerate the physical and emotional tensions in the child and in the family.

The anxiety of parents is sometimes made more marked by the suggestion that the formation of the jaw and the configuration of the teeth will be permanently changed and even damaged. This has not sufficient validity to pressurize the child or restrain him. The psychological damage that can be done to a child can be far more destructive than the disadvantage of a questionable change in dentition that may result.

In the older child of six or seven it may cause him embarrassment in the early grades at school. If thumb sucking persists at this time, consultation with a doctor or a psychologist may reveal the deeper rooted reasons for thumb sucking and how it can be resolved without producing more difficult and less apparent psychological traits.

Even while dieting, breakfast is an important meal.

The Business World

By JOHN CUNIFF

NEW YORK (AP) — The decision this week by federal judges that some corporate officers violated the law by buying stock in their company before telling the public some awfully good news already is being called a landmark.

If this is so, then this landmark is liable to be thoroughly trampled or lost in the weeds for a while. It still will be difficult to measure misdeeds by it. And it may even confuse the confusing business of just what is "inside" information.

The decision, which involves the Texas Gulf Sulphur Co., means that insiders, usually company officers, cannot trade stock in their corporation on the basis of their access to information not yet disclosed to the public.

That much is clear enough. But the decision also involves as insiders, those outsiders who receive tips on the unpublished news. That really hits home. It involves the mechanism of the market, whose gears revolve on tips, rumors, gossip, speculation and inside dope.

How often, for example, do professionals obtain information on earnings, possible stock splits, merger plans, management changes, discoveries, new products, contract awards and such?

Judging by the frequency with which stocks rise on bullish rumors and "unconfirmed reports" only to fall when the news is confirmed, indicates that the answer might be "more than a few times."

In fact, to learn such information if possible is the business of today's aggressive analysts. True, the stock exchanges are sometimes quick to prod firms into announcements after the rumors begin floating, but this really confirms that inside traders were indeed at work.

The Texas Gulf case briefly is this:

In mid-November 1963 officials of the company began receiving reports from geologists at Timmins, Ont., indicating a mineral find might be developing.

On April 12, 1964, company officers, prompted by rumors, disclosed that the company had prospects in the Timmins area but said early reports then circulating might be premature and misleading.

Four days later, however, the company announced a major discovery at the site, a disclosure that naturally propelled upward the price of Texas Gulf stock, making it, in fact, one of the glamor holdings of the year.

Investigating, the Securities and Exchange Commission found that despite the cautious tone of the April 12 announcement, officers of the company had been acting very bullish. They had been buying stock and tipping friends to buy also.

This, said the SEC, was a violation of the securities laws because officers and friends had used for their own personal benefit information that everyone in the marketplace was entitled to know.

After losing in one court, the SEC was upheld by nine judges in the U.S. Court of Appeals. It is likely now that some form of restitution will be demanded of the Texas Gulf insiders.

NEW YORK (AP) — Remarks that television repairmen get tired of hearing:

"The only difference between you and Jesse James is that Jesse rode a horse."

"What new tweed pattern are you going to leave us with this time, Benjy? I got kind of tired of the last one."

"I don't know what's wrong with it. I kicked it several times — and even that didn't seem to help."

"Why can't you fix our television set so it will stay fixed? Is that too much to ask?"

"I hear that Benjy studied television repairing through a correspondence school. He must have run out of stamps after taking the second lesson."

"What!—You here again Benjy? You spend more time in my living room than Walter Cronkite does."

"It was real eerie. We were just sitting there calmly watching an old Lucille Ball program, and then, instead of her voice, we heard Hubert Humphrey giving a political speech. How mixed up can a television set get?"

"What's wrong with it this time? Well, for one thing, the NBC peacock looks like a flamingo or a blushing chicken. Are peacocks supposed to have pale pink feathers?"

"Put away your screwdriver, Benjy. I guess I won't need you after all. Just before you got here, I jiggled the machine a little and now it's doing fine again. Here's a quarter for your trouble."

"My wife wastes whole days looking at soap operas, Benjy. I'd like to make a secret deal with you. Whatever she pays you to fix the set, I'll double the amount if you fix it so that it breaks down again ten minutes after you leave."

"Why is it that every television repairman, when he finds he can't make your old machine work anymore, can always refer you to an uncle or a cousin or a brother-in-law who is in the business of selling new sets? Isn't that against the antitrust laws—or something?"

"Well, Benjy, if our television set has you stumped, how about looking at my laundry machine or my vacuum cleaner? They're not working either."

"Just do me one favor, Benjy. Tell me who your wife calls for help when the set in your own house breaks down—and I'll give him a ring."

"I'm warning you, Benjy—my check for this job is postdated 10 days. If our machine falls apart again in that time, I'll call the bank and tell them to stop payment."

"Well, the world can be grateful for one thing, Benjy—at least you didn't take up brain surgery."

"Is this your bill—or just the federal debt?"

"We first suspected there was something wrong with it when we saw Richard Nixon addressing the Republican convention on the right side of the set, and on the left side we saw Kitty pouring Marshal Dillon a drink in the Long Branch Saloon."

"As soon as he finds out that we don't have any more beer in the refrigerator, he'll get the set working again in a jiffy."

"Benjy, you must make more out of television than Johnny Carson and Jackie Gleason put together."

"I don't want my television set to be lonely in case my wife and I should pass on suddenly, Benjy, so I've put a clause in my will leaving the machine to you. After all, it has spent more time in your shop than it has in our home."

THE TEMPLE IS REBUILT DESPITE OPPOSITION

Scripture—Ezra 4-6; Haggai 1.

By R. H. RAMSEY

IN LAST week's lesson we saw how Cyrus, king of Persia, ended the Exile by permitting the Hebrews to return to Jerusalem and rebuild the Temple. Not all the exiles chose to return, but more than 40,000 made the four-month trip under the leadership of Zerubbabel, heir to the throne of David.

Almost immediately upon their return to Palestine the exiles built an altar in the Temple area and began laying the foundations for the second Temple. Completion of the foundation was celebrated with great joy and feasting, as we have seen.

Despite the removal of thousands of Hebrews to Babylonian captivity, and the laying waste of the land and cities, Palestine was not without people during the Exile. Remnants of the Hebrew people were left in Judea (Jeremiah 39), and there were people in the surrounding nations. For almost two generations they had occupied the land, set up business and trade routes. The return of the children of Benjamin and Judah disturbed them. And when they heard the

"Is it time for you, O ye, to dwell in your sealed houses, and this house lie waste?"—Haggai 1:4.

Jews were rebuilding the Temple at Jerusalem they began making trouble.

First they went to Zerubbabel and asked if they could participate in the rebuilding of the Temple. Zerubbabel refused and they looked for ways of hindering the construction of the Temple. They were somewhat successful, for the rebuilding of the Temple slowed down. Finally they wrote a letter to Artaxerxes, then king of Persia, reminding him the Jews of an earlier age — whose descendants were currently rebuilding Jerusalem — had a history of rebellion against their conquerors, as a search of the king's libraries would show. The Jews, the letter said, were rebuilding the walls (a gross exaggeration) and if allowed to continue, Artaxerxes would soon find them in rebellion and lose his Palestinian territories.

The letter worked. Artaxerxes ordered all building in Jerusalem stopped and work on the Temple ceased until the second year of Darius' reign.

In that year two prophets, Haggai and Zechariah, appeared by church scholars this week as dissension continued over Pope Paul's encyclical upholding the church's prohibition against contraception.

However, in the present era, no parallels were seen to equal the current wave of controversy among Catholics themselves.

Despite comparisons with the past, however, circumstances presently were not regarded as offering much prospect for early modification, at least not until other conditions or leadership came about.

"I don't see how the Pope could ever change his views after making a statement as strong as this," says Msgr. Austin Vaughan of Yonkers, N.Y., president of the American Catholic Theological Society. "It would be easier for the Pope to resign than to change this statement."

The National Catholic Reporter published speculation that the issue might be a factor in the next papal election.

Scholars also noted that at various times in the past, firm papal teachings have ultimately been altered or reversed by later church leaders after the passage of years.

"It is plain that the fallible statements of earlier popes have been refuted in the course of time by the criticism and rejection of the Church," says John T. Noonan, a Catholic law expert of the University of California.

He and others, including the Rt. Rev. Msgr. John Tracy Ellis, a noted church historian, cited various examples in which papal pronouncements eventually were reversed, including:

—An 1185 ruling by Pope Urban III, in his ban against usury, holding that the charging of interest on loans and credits was immoral—a practice now accepted by church and society as a useful economic measure.

—Pope Gregory VI's 1832 encyclical condemning the idea that everyone is entitled to freedom of conscience as "a delirium" and a "pestilential error"—a view strongly rejected by the Second Vatican Council in its declaration on religious freedom and rights of conscience.

The Church, since its early years, has opposed contraception, a conviction that arose when populations were sparse and infant mortality high. The Vatican pointed out that Pope Paul's reiteration of the teaching was not specified as being infallible.

Cranberry cocktail and cranapple juice are so popular that they take about 35 per cent of America's largest cranberry producers' berries.

See Shift in Birth Control

NEW YORK (AP) — History records numerous instances when decisions by the papacy have provoked broad repercussions.

And sometimes, teaching pronouncements eventually have been changed. Such cases were being cited by church scholars this week as discussion continued over Pope Paul's encyclical upholding the church's prohibition against contraception.

However, in the present era, no parallels were seen to equal the current wave of controversy among Catholics themselves.

Despite comparisons with the past, however, circumstances presently were not regarded as offering much prospect for early modification, at least not until other conditions or leadership come about.

"I don't see how the Pope could ever change his views after making a statement as strong as this," says Msgr. Austin Vaughan of Yonkers, N.Y., president of the American Catholic Theological Society. "It would be easier for the Pope to resign than to change this statement."

The National Catholic Reporter published speculation that the issue might be a factor in the next papal election.

Scholars also noted that at various times in the past, firm papal teachings have ultimately been altered or reversed by later church leaders after the passage of years.

"It is plain that the fallible statements of earlier popes have been refuted in the course of time by the criticism and rejection of the Church," says John T. Noonan, a Catholic law expert of the University of California.

He and others, including the Rt. Rev. Msgr. John Tracy Ellis, a noted church historian, cited various examples in which papal pronouncements eventually were reversed, including:

—An 1185 ruling by Pope Urban III, in his ban against usury, holding that the charging of interest on loans and credits was immoral—a practice now accepted by church and society as a useful economic measure.

—Pope Gregory VI's 1832 encyclical condemning the idea that everyone is entitled to freedom of conscience as "a delirium" and a "pestilential error"—a view strongly rejected by the Second Vatican Council in its declaration on religious freedom and rights of conscience.

The Church, since its early years, has opposed contraception, a conviction that arose when populations were sparse and infant mortality high. The Vatican pointed out that Pope Paul's reiteration of the teaching was not specified as being infallible.

Cranberry cocktail and cranapple-juice are so popular that they take about 35 per cent of America's largest cranberry producers' berries.

LBJ Good, Tests Show

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — President Johnson's political condition may be vastly different from 1966, but doctors say his X-rays show no change in his physical condition.

Press secretary George Christian said the prognosis applies to everything, including the di- verticulosis the President has had since 1960 but revealed only after his checkup last week.

Christian wouldn't say whether Johnson would attend a luncheon at the Democratic National Convention on Aug. 27, the President's 60th birthday.

Johnson continued to mix a Texas holiday with some work. He approved 35 postmaster nominations, cited two South Vietnamese Army companies for heroism and approved setting up CAMPS—Cooperative Area Manpower Planning System—for combining federal and local resources to train the unemployed.

LA JOLLA, Calif. (AP) — Mary Fegan is dead at 105—74 years after a Nebraska physician gave her six months to live.

Instead of staying and dying, she once said, she moved to California in 1893 in a covered wagon and regained her health.

Graveside services for Mrs. Fegan, who died Wednesday, were held Thursday in San Diego.

New Finish Fabricated In the War on Stains

By ELEANOR ROSS

Continuing our review of fabric finishes, we note that the soil release process is not a cure-all durable press finish because each type of stain has its own chemical properties. The most troublesome are the usual summer stains — mustard, dirty motor oil, certain lipsticks, and grass.

Disappearing Act

Tests do show, however, that grass stains can disappear in two washings. Soil release is a special boon on tablecloths because of the varied stains that do occur and can be removed — such as salad dressing, red wine, coffee, chocolate, candle wax, ketchup, and tea.

To do right when laundering durable press items with a good soil release finish, begin by reading and carefully following instructions on merchandise labels. Try to blot or sponge spots or stains promptly. The longer stains remain, the more difficult they are to remove. Old stains should be pretreated with a concentrated solution of detergent for about an hour, prior to laundering. Don't expose spots and stains to heat or sunlight, since some types can be "baked" right into the fabric.

As is done with regular laundry, sort and wash white pieces separately from colored ones. And very dirty pieces from those that are not so dirty.

Keep washer loads small so suds and rinses can circulate readily. Use as much (or even a little more) soap or detergent in the wash cycle as the amount recommended. Follow directions on the merchandise label for proper washing and rinsing temperatures.

If a dryer is used, set it at the recommended temperature and remove soil-release items as soon as dry to avoid wrinkling.

Additional Provision

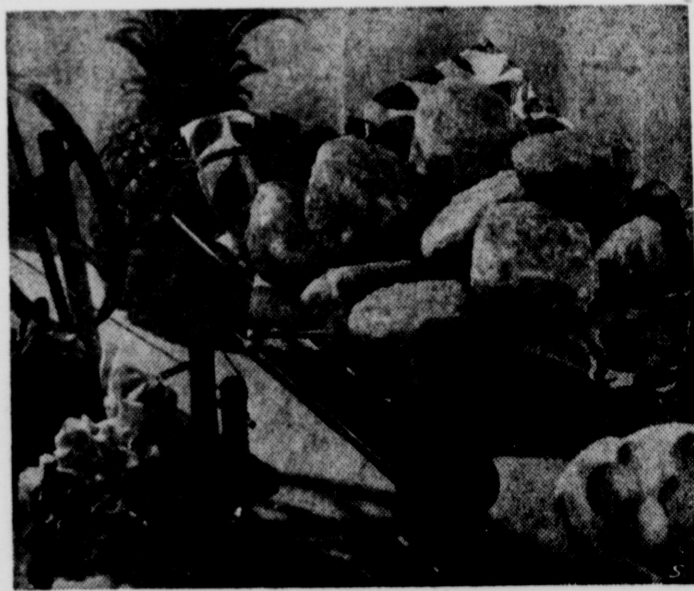

Soil release finishes also provide resistance to pulling or fuzzing and garments with this process have a less "clammy" feel in hot weather.

Practically all fiber producers, fabric makers, and manufacturers involved in durable press apparel and home furnishings are deeply concerned with soil release.

It is confidently predicted that soil release finishes will soon be virtually universal on all durable press merchandise as an integral part of the fabric.

5 Demo 'Pros' Are Chosen To Run Chicago Convention

WASHINGTON (AP) — A five-man team of "old pros," with two members already committed to a candidate and the other three ostensibly neutral, will run the Democratic National Convention that opens in Chicago a week from Monday.

The two who have taken sides are backing Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey for the No. 1 spot on the ticket. Two others are long-time supporters of President Johnson but haven't announced for anyone yet.

The lineup drew charges of a stacked deck from the forces of Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy when it was announced by Democratic National Chairman John M. Bailey.

But the McCarthy people, already digging in for tough battles over credentials and the party platform, are reluctantly accepting the convention officers.

Here is the lineup:
The two who have endorsed Humphrey are Rep. Hale Boggs of Louisiana, who will head the platform committee, and Sen. Daniel K. Inouye of Hawaii, who will keynote the convention and serve as temporary chairman.

Both Rep. Carl B. Albert of Oklahoma, the permanent chairman, and Gov. Richard J. Hughes of New Jersey, who will head the credentials committee, were strong Johnson supporters but have stayed uncommitted since the President's withdrawal.

So has Gov. Samuel H. Shapiro of Illinois, who was named as chairman of the rules committee less than a month after he took over as governor following Otto E. Kerner's resignation to become a federal appeals judge.

Albert, 60, takes over as permanent chairman from House Speaker John W. McCormack, who asked to be relieved of the post he held four years ago and was named honorary chairman.

years of life one can deduct from each 10 pounds of overweight. Vanity isn't everything, I agree. But if you want that wonderful wife around to "worship" in your old age, give her some food—for thought.

My fiancé has been in that sort of trouble for the past 10 years. He said he did it at first for kicks. Then it became a habit. There followed a series of arrests and jail sentences. He is presently awaiting action on a more serious but directly related offense.

For the 2 years I've known him I had assumed he was "cured" and had not been in trouble. I was wrong. You cannot imagine the heartbreak and shock I suffered when they arrested him the last time.

He's not a bum. He is a well-educated young man from a good family.

I beg you, please see that your son consults a doctor, clergyman, school guidance counselor, or any mental health center, but do it now. Later may be too late.

NO NAME, NO CITY, PLEASE

DEAR ABBY: Please tell that Montana professor that somebody here in Arkansas disagrees with him. He said, "a wife should be patient and encourage her husband to stay in graduate school, for they will both benefit from his increased earning capacity as well as the professional status boost he will have earned," or words to that effect.

I say, PHOOEY! I quit college and worked for 8 years in order to put my husband thru medical school. Then he met a cute little nurse! He left me and took his "increased earning capacity and professional status boost" with him.

If I had been wise, I'd have finished MY education in order to increase MY earning capacity, because now I have to support myself.

Both Rep. Carl B. Albert of Oklahoma, the permanent chairman, and Gov. Richard J. Hughes of New Jersey, who will head the credentials committee, were strong Johnson supporters but have stayed uncommitted since the President's withdrawal.

So has Gov. Samuel H. Shapiro of Illinois, who was named as chairman of the rules committee less than a month after he took over as governor following Otto E. Kerner's resignation to become a federal appeals judge.

Urge International Satellite Laws on Communications

VIENNA (AP) — A United Nations agency reported today that satellites "represent a turning point in the history of communication" but warned that international laws are needed to control them.

UNESCO—the U.N. Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization—said that agreements must be made to ensure the use of satellite communications in the public interest for peaceful purposes and for better understanding among nations.

The agency said satellite communications should be readily available to all nations and there should be agreement on assignment of available radio frequencies.

The report was presented at the first U.N. conference on peaceful uses of outer space, which opened Wednesday with delegates attending from 74 nations.

UNESCO cited direct broadcast satellites as a potential for trouble. These satellites, expected to be developed by the mid-1970s, will contain such powerful transmitters and antennas that they will beam directly to home television sets without the need for a ground relay station.

"The more international communications the satellites carry," the report said, "the more necessary it will become to surround the satellite system with a pattern of law and orderliness and some institutional arrangements to manage the control problems. If these arrangements are not in working order by the time we begin direct broadcasting from satellites, then we shall face a very dangerous situation."

Without regulation, one U.N. official said, individual nations could use satellites as a powerful propaganda tool.

Adjourn Hearing In Girl's Death

NEW YORK (AP)—Criminal Court Judge Jack Rosenberg Thursday adjourned until Sept. 4 a hearing for two men charged in the rape-murder of Debbie Neill, 13, of Vickery, Ohio.

The men, Dave Thomas, 30, and Ronald Alfio, both of Manhattan, are being held without bail. Rosenberg granted the adjournment because the case has not yet been presented to a grand jury.

It's Such a Big World

Some folks say that as we grow older the world grows smaller. Is that because of the wonders of modern communication and transportation? Or is it because when some folks grow older they become preoccupied with their own little orbit of life?

Junior certainly enters life completely preoccupied with himself. But once he begins to walk and talk—gosh how his world balloons!

That's why he needs the religious training our churches provide. His faith must keep pace with his burgeoning world.

And as grown-ups, in worship and Christian devotion, we need likewise the spiritual gifts our churches offer.

For it really is a big world. Full of challenges, opportunities, and promising tomorrow. It always looks that way to a growing soul.

Urge International Satellite Laws on Communications

VIENNA (AP) — A United Nations agency reported today that satellites "represent a turning point in the history of communication" but warned that international laws are needed to control them.

UNESCO—the U.N. Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization—said that agreements must be made to ensure the use of satellite communications in the public interest for peaceful purposes and for better understanding among nations.

The agency said satellite communications should be readily available to all nations and there should be agreement on assignment of available radio frequencies.

The report was presented at the first U.N. conference on peaceful uses of outer space, which opened Wednesday with delegates attending from 74 nations.

UNESCO cited direct broadcast satellites as a potential for trouble. These satellites, expected to be developed by the mid-1970s, will contain such powerful transmitters and antennas that they will beam directly to home television sets without the need for a ground relay station.

Adjourn Hearing In Girl's Death

NEW YORK (AP)—Criminal Court Judge Jack Rosenberg Thursday adjourned until Sept. 4 a hearing for two men charged in the rape-murder of Debbie Neill, 13, of Vickery, Ohio.

The men, Dave Thomas, 30, and Ronald Alfio, both of Manhattan, are being held without bail. Rosenberg granted the adjournment because the case has not yet been presented to a grand jury.

Judges Rule Against New Hoffa Bid

CHICAGO (AP) — A federal appeals court has upheld a lower court finding that electronic eavesdropping by the government did not aid in the 1964 conviction of James R. Hoffa, imprisoned Teamsters union president.

The U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals agreed Thursday with a finding by U.S. District Judge Richard B. Austin that "the government obtained no new information from the electronically eavesdropped overhearings." One of the three judges dissented.

Hoffa was sentenced to five years in prison and fined $10,000 in the 1964 conviction for fraud and conspiracy in using $1 million in union pension funds to finance a Sun Valley, Fla., real estate project.

The sentence was vacated by the U.S. Supreme Court, which ordered a hearing to determine whether admitted government wiretapping aided in the conviction.

Austin issued the finding Aug. 22, 1967, against Hoffa after the Teamsters official and five co-defendants contended the government had based its 1964 case on a wiretap of the telephone of S. George Burris of New York, one of the co-defendants.

Austin ordered the five-year term to run consecutively with an eight-year sentence imposed in Chattanooga, Tenn., on conviction of jury tampering. Hoffa is serving in the Lewisburg, Pa., federal penitentiary.

Ethel Kennedy Buys Big House In Connecticut

NEW YORK (AP) — Ethel Kennedy, widow of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, and mother of 10 children, has bought a 20-room house on a 64-acre estate in Greenwich, Conn., NBC News said today.

Mrs. Kennedy paid $1½ million for the English Tudor-style home, the report said. The estate, in the Round Hill section, also has a cottage for guests or servants, and stables. Mrs. Kennedy grew up in Greenwich.

Mrs. Kennedy filed a petition Thursday in Surrogate's Court seeking permission to sell the family's cooperative apartment at 870 United Nations Plaza.

The petition said the Kennedy estate held 635 shares in the cooperative, valued at $125,000 to $175,000. The petition cited a "currently favorable" market as the reason for seeking court approval for the sale. Proceeds would go into the estate.

Ohio University Talks Deadlock

ATHENS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio University administrators said Thursday they cannot consider some requests from the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees. The union is asking for higher pay, and that non-teaching staff be obliged to pay union dues regardless of whether they belong to the union.

The announcement indicated that negotiations between the union and the university had reached a stalemate. No date was set for further talks.

The union has threatened to strike the university in September when the fall quarter starts.

Ohio Demo, Labor Leaders Deny Gilligan Funds Cut Off In Crash

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio Democrats and labor leaders denied Thursday reports that labor was withdrawing support from U.S. Senate hopeful John J. Gilligan.

The New York Times said Thursday that financial support from organized labor was cut off because Gilligan had refused to commit himself to Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey at a Democratic caucus here Monday.

Humphrey said Thursday in Newark, N. J.: "I am a Gilligan man. . . I look forward to his support after the convention just as he can count on my support now."

Frank W. King, president of the Ohio AFL-CIO, said that rumors that Gilligan "has lost support and financial backing of the Ohio AFL-CIO are completely without foundation."

"No deals have been made," said King. "No pledges of support money have been made."

William Kricher of Washington, director of organization for the national AFL-CIO, left Columbus Thursday with Gilligan for a campaign tour in southeast Ohio.

Kricher said plans for the tour had been made 12 days ago, but observed: "My presence indicates support for Gilligan. I find it difficult to believe that labor, which supported him in the primary, would not support him in the fall election."

Democratic State Chairman Eugene P. O'Grady said, "The stories have in no instance originated from the Democratic state organization in Columbus."

Atty. Gen. William B. Saxbe, Gilligan's Republican opponent for the Senate seat, said in a news conference at Cincinnati Thursday that he was "as much amazed as anyone else" at the reports.

He said it was "possible" the reports were true, but added he would like to await future developments before commenting himself.

Pilot Killed, 5 Injured In Crash

MEDINA, Ohio (AP) — The pilot was killed and five sport parachutists were injured Thursday night when a single-engine plane hit a grove of trees and crashed near Brunswick Airport in Medina County.

Trapped in the burning wreckage and killed was Walter Dodge, 50, of Strongsville.

Dodge was owner of the airport and the plane, a Piper Cherokee.

Edward Mullen, 20, of North Royalton, one of the injured sky divers, said the plane hit the trees at the end of the runway after taking off. He said the plane burst into flames after crashing in a field about one half mile south of the airport.

Most seriously injured was Michael Robinson, 19, of Parma Heights, who was reported in critical condition at Southwest General Hospital, Berea with burns.

Others injured were Carl Walk, 28, Cleveland, Richard Brow, 20, North Royalton, and Daniel Harding, 39, Cleveland.

FBI Continues Cleveland Probe

WASHINGTON (AP) — The FBI is continuing a quiet investigation of the July 23 violence in Cleveland, and the Justice Department is holding off on a decision whether to start a grand jury investigation.

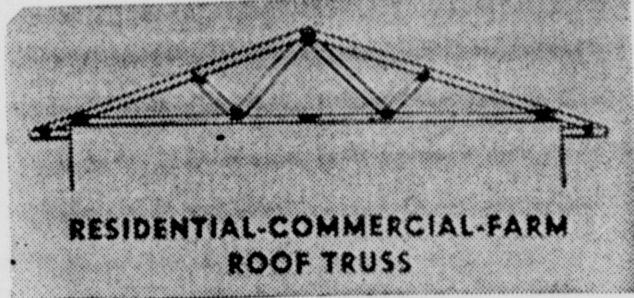

A letter was made public Thursday in which Asst. U.S. Atty. Fred M. Vinson told Rep. William E. Minshall, R-Ohio, on Aug. 5 that:

"We do not feel it necessary at this time to call a special session of the grand jury but we are keeping the possibility in mind as we review information being given to us by those on the scene in Cleveland."

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Two top Ohio Republicans were off for San Diego, Calif., today for campaign talks with GOP presidential candidate Richard M. Nixon.

Mrs. King Urges 'Love'

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — The widow of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. has told the organization he headed that "We must rededicate ourselves anew to the principles of love and non-violence" in the civil rights movement.

At a banquet Thursday during the annual convention of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, Coretta King said, "The road ahead will be extremely difficult."

King's successor as SCLC president, the Rev. Ralph David Abernathy, opened the convention's Thursday session by saying that neither political party may take for granted the Negro vote.

Abernathy said unless there is a candidate "who is free to serve the people and meet their needs," Negroes might boycott the presidential election. "If may be that as black people we will have to have a blackout of the presidential election," he said.

Weekend Scioto Cards Plan To Draw 400,000 to Downs

One of the prime reasons that the 1968 attendance at Scioto Downs will soar over the 400,000 figure this weekend is the outstanding Friday and Saturday racing programs.

Scioto Downs' director of racing, John Phillips, has assembled another pair of ten race cards that could produce new records in almost every department.

Friday night's sparkling ten race program is highlighted by the $5,500 Invitational Trot. This event has been a real block-buster the past twelve weeks, and this time seven powerful trotters will battle for gold and glory. Lil Rodney, the vaunted six-time winner of the event, will defend against Interloper with owner-driver Ray Garrity up, and this week another new name will make the rail-birds' job a little tougher on picking the winner.

Sara Rodney, owned by George Albers of Marion and driven by the veteran Curly Smart, will be joined by Stomedor, The Timer, Gay Saint Pat and Songs Key in the "stop Lil Rodney" movement.

SATURDAY night's ten race program will have the turnstiles whirling, and the infield tote board and visumatic timer shining as brilliant as a Christmas tree.

The $5,500 Invitational Pace is the headliner in the star-studded program, and Castle Knight, last week's winner by a head over Kabulo, will lay his record of 1:59 4-5 on the line against Bank Time a 1:59 4-5 winner, Irish Miracle who scored in 1:59 4-5, Kabulo, Miss Red Lion and two new starters this week. Short John returns to the Scioto racing scene after a successful invasion of Chicago and Detroit.

A field of sports which is usually reserved for the stronger males will be invaded Saturday night by June Dillman, one of the three lady drivers competing in the sport today. This outstanding 16 year old lady sulky artist takes a back seat to no man. Her entry Saturday night in the feature event is Mighty Nig, a five-year-old son of Widower Creed who owns a half mile track mark of 2:01 4-5.

The companion feature Saturday night is the $3,500 Invitational Pace for three and four year olds. Adios Waverly, the Little Brown Jug eligible who earned a new mark of 2:01 2-5 in this event last week, will be back to do battle with Cardinal Way with a mile mark of 2:01 3-5. More Time with Curly Smart up, Bill Carlith, Stanley Byrd and two new starters this week, Four Oaks from the Bob Seabrook stable and Duane Victoire from the Donnie C. Miller stable.

Four Oaks has won five of six starts for Seabrook this year, and Duane Victoire who will be driven by Don Miller of Bret Hanover fame, will put his record of 2:01 3-5 on the line.

The third feature Saturday night is the seventh race, a $3,000 Preferred Pace. June Dillman will make her first appearance of the night in this event with Coker Bill, a 2:02 1-5 winner at Northfield Park last week. The MacJay stable's Bye Time was last week's winner in 2:03 1-5 for reinsman George Ursitti.

Brad Farrington brings Royal Adios back to Scioto for this race, and the Jim Graybill owned stallion just completed a most successful campaign at Latonia where he earned a new lifetime mark of 2:00 2-5. Larry Byrd who has paced in 2:01 4-5, Scot Galophone a 2:01 4-5 winner for owner-driver Phil Lang, Gayliner second to Bye Time last week and Tronia's Son round out the preferred pace field.

Logan Elm Has 29 Grid Candidates

Logan Elm High School football coach Marc Albright handed out uniforms to 29 candidates Thursday in preparation for the first day of grid practice.

All 29 of the candidates have been participating in the two-week long conditioning program at Logan Elm.

"The football players at Logan Elm are out," Albright told parents last night in a pre-season meeting. He said that other schools might have more candidates but many would quit after a week or two of practice.

"I don't think we have any quitters in this bunch," he said.

The meeting with parents was held at the school. The sport of football, practice sessions and team rules were outlined to those present.

In addition, George Hamrick discussed officiating. Dr. William Myers stressed the importance of conditioning, and Dow West emphasized the need for the football players to average, particularly if they maintain a high scholastic plan to attend college.

Watton New Amanda Coach

Jerry L. Watton, former line coach at Watkins Memorial High School, was hired early this week as head grid mentor and head track coach at School.

Watton has served as coach at Zanesville and Morgan High Schools. A native of Zanesville, he received his BS degree from Bowling Green State University.

He assumes his duties at once. Last night he called a meeting for all prospective football and track Aces. Former Amanda coach, Jim Morrison, left to assume duties as assistant coach and athletic director at Upper Sandusky High School.

Watton, his wife Barbara and their two children Shawn, 4, and Amy Lynn, 18 months, will move to Amanda soon.

Abrams Sees Bigger Viet War

SAIGON (AP) — It is the official view of the U.S. Command in Vietnam that Hanoi at present is not planning a de-escalation of the war but remains determined to attack with greater force when the time is ripe. This assessment has been conveyed to President Johnson by Gen. Creighton Abrams Jr., the U.S. commander.

The current lull in the fighting, U.S. headquarters believes, was decided upon by Hanoi to enable its forces to bind the serious wounds sustained in this year's battles.

The lull of almost two months is no olive branch, senior officers say, although Hanoi might wish it interpreted as such in the Paris peace talks. If the slackening in the war was dictated by political decisions in Hanoi, there is little evidence of this on the battlefields of South Vietnam the officers say.

"The evidence is overwhelming that they are still determined to carry out and win the military third phase of their classic guerrilla doctrine," a ranking U.S. authority stated.

If many Vietnam watchers now believe that Hanoi is engaged in quietly de-escalating the war, Abrams does not agree. His headquarters vigorously defends intelligence reports of increasing North Vietnamese infiltration into the South.

As a result of the slackening war and increased infiltration since June, responsible authorities say, the over-all enemy troop strength in South Vietnam has increased. They say infiltration this month, while declining, will probably come close to July's figure of almost 30,000.

It is at this point, however, that the command's figures come into question. There has been great confusion about the rate of infiltration, with some military estimates differing from civilian figures.

The present Viet Cong and North Vietnamese strength in South Vietnam is carried in weekly communiques as 222,000 soldiers and 85,000 political cadre, at most. Of these, some 95,000 are reported to be North Vietnamese regulars.

This figure, released weekly to the press, has remained constant for months. It is an "evaluated" figure, incorporating information over many months. It is also smoothed out to avoid fluctuations which might, or might not, be inaccurate over a long period. It was not designed for day to day accuracy, officers explain, but to give an over-all picture.

Thus, like American political polls, the weekly statistics have to be assessed and are open to different interpretations. The U.S. headquarters insists that the figures are accurate.

Nonetheless, these are not the figures that the military intelligence community furnishes Abrams each Saturday in his personal weekly review of the war. Those figures are classified, along with the weekly infiltration report he also receives.

Unofficial Ohio Demo 'Primary' Begins Today

CLEVELAND (AP) — Polling in Ohio's unofficial Democratic presidential primary begins today with four names on the ballot.

They are Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey and U.S. Senators Eugene J. McCarthy, George S. McGovern and Edward M. Kennedy.

Some 600 polling places in 40 counties will be open from 10 a. m. to 2 p. m. and 4 to 8 p. m. today and Saturday. Stephen M. Young of Ohio said Thursday the primary "gives all Ohio Democrats the right to express themselves and have their votes counted now."

Young said the results will be announced Sunday and they "will not go unnoticed by delegates from Ohio and by delegates throughout the nation."

The treaty is for 20 years and will become valid on the exchange of ratification documents, to be made in Bucharest shortly.

Newspapers of both countries underlined the ovations given Ceausescu on his arrival Thursday in Prague.

The Romanian leader is popular in Czechoslovakia because of his outspoken support for the nation in the face of pressure by hard-liners in the Soviet bloc for reversal of the Czechoslovak liberalization drive.

Romanians, Czechs Sign New Treaty

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia (AP) — Romanian President and Communist party chief Nicolae Ceausescu and Czechoslovak President Ludvik Svoboda today signed a new treaty of friendship, cooperation and mutual assistance between their two nations.

The Czechoslovak news agency CTK reported the treaty contains a declaration by the two countries that "the inviolability of the existing frontiers between European states is one of the main preconditions of European security" and that the two countries would "take all necessary measures against plots and aggression on the part of imperialist, military and revanchist forces."

At the Nov. 13 meeting, which will be open to shareholders of record Sept. 20, stockholders will be asked to approve the two-for-one split, which, Mr. Baker said, "will improve the marketability of PPG's stock."

If approved, the effective date of the split will be Nov. 27, 1968. PPG's closing price on the New York Stock Exchange Aug. 13 was $89½.

Sailing Saucer To Skim World?

NEW PORT BEACH, Calif. (AP) — C. M. Christensen says he'll skim the world some day in his super sailing saucer which he built because of the price of yachts.

He says it cost $15,000 to build the round ship during the past nine months. It's 40 feet in diameter, carries four hydrofoils and rides the waves on an air cushion. Rays of clear plastic radiate from its center.

While he test drives it in Newport Beach Harbor, Christensen says he won't let anybody see it from within.

The ship's so secret, he says, that its name is Top Secret. "I threw the mold away," he says.

Lucas County Sheriff Withdraws

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP)—Lucas County Sheriff William Hirsch, 75, withdrew Thursday as a candidate to succeed himself in the Nov. 5 general election. Sheriff since 1953, Hirsch cited health as the reason.

The county Republican organization has one week to appoint a successor in the race. The Democratic candidate is John McHugh.

Two cases in which motorists were charged with driving while intoxicated topped the traffic docket in Circleville Municipal Court Thursday.

Paul Hicks, 32, Route 2, Laurelville, and Gerald Guysinger, 33, Route 3, were both charged with OMVI. Each was fined $150 and costs, placed in the county jail for three days and had their drivers' licenses suspended for six months. Both were allowed to drive to and from work.

In the only other case called, an out-of-county motorist forfeited a $24 bond.

Predict Wallace Sweep in Ohio

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — George C. Wallace will sweep Ohio in November if he gets on the presidential ballot, one of his top aides said here Thursday.

Wallace has more support in Ohio than in any other state, said Stan Sikes of Montgomery, Ala., an attorney and one of Wallace's national campaign coordinators.

Wallace, the American Independent Party candidate, is battling to have his name placed on the Ohio ballot. Sikes said Wallace's name would be on the ballots of the 49 other states without question.

Abrams Sees Bigger Viet War

SAIGON (AP) — It is the official view of the U.S. Command in Vietnam that Hanoi at present is not planning a de-escalation of the war but remains determined to attack with greater force when the time is ripe. This assessment has been conveyed to President Johnson by Gen. Creighton Abrams Jr., the U.S. commander.

The current lull in the fighting, U.S. headquarters believes, was decided upon by Hanoi to enable its forces to bind the serious wounds sustained in this year's battles.

The lull of almost two months is no olive branch, senior officers say, although Hanoi might wish it interpreted as such in the Paris peace talks. If the slackening in the war was dictated by political decisions in Hanoi, there is little evidence of this on the battlefields of South Vietnam the officers say.

"The evidence is overwhelming that they are still determined to carry out and win the military third phase of their classic guerrilla doctrine," a ranking U.S. authority stated.

If many Vietnam watchers now believe that Hanoi is engaged in quietly de-escalating the war, Abrams does not agree. His headquarters vigorously defends intelligence reports of increasing North Vietnamese infiltration into the South.

As a result of the slackening war and increased infiltration since June, responsible authorities say, the over-all enemy troop strength in South Vietnam has increased. They say infiltration this month, while declining, will probably come close to July's figure of almost 30,000.

It is at this point, however, that the command's figures come into question.

There has been great confusion about the rate of infiltration, with some military estimates differing from civilian figures.

The present Viet Cong and North Vietnamese strength in South Vietnam is carried in weekly communiques as 222,000 soldiers and 85,000 political cadre, at most. Of these, some 95,000 are reported to be North Vietnamese regulars.

This figure, released weekly to the press, has remained constant for months. It is an "evaluated" figure, incorporating information over many months. It is also smoothed out to avoid fluctuations which might, or might not, be inaccurate over a long period. It was not designed for day to day accuracy, officers explain, but to give an over-all picture.

Thus, like American political polls, the weekly statistics have to be assessed and are open to different interpretations. The U.S. headquarters insists that the figures are accurate.

Nonetheless, these are not the figures that the military intelligence community furnishes Abrams each Saturday in his personal weekly review of the war. Those figures are classified, along with the weekly infiltration report he also receives.
